Arctic Wings, by William A. LEISING, OMI (Mackenzie). Doubleday, 1959. 335 pp. Illus. $4.95.

A man who has richly earned the name of « Flying Missionary », the A. has had one breathtaking experience after another. He has flown countless mercy missions bringing the sick out of the wilderness, carrying supplies to stranded communities close to starvation, and airlifting school children. His plane has been forced down time and again as he braved impossible flying conditions to help his far-flung people. This is the story of his stirring adventures since his assignment to the Mackenzie Vicariate in 1940.

The Food Problem in Basutoland, by Gilles BROSARD, OMI (Basutoland). 1958. 232 pp. mimeographed. Submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of D. Sc. (Agric.), University of Pretoria, U. of S.A.

A casual observer on first coming into contact with the Basuto will see at a glance that they are poor, and with little further inquiry he will note that they are also often hungry and sick. This has led the writer to investigate the food problem among the Basuto. This investigation was from the beginning
